fi for first instance or first use of a particular instance to prevent me from searching further back in time in my material looking for first use

t,h,e,y written with comma's (,) rather than periods (.) to indicate my softening attitude towards what I think are ego killers, i.e. T.H.E.Y as in T.H.E.Y is made not born and for those on t,h,e,i,r way to T.H.E.Y this warning: STOP! and turn around now, don't wait until you become a T.H.E.Y

= = I use this to mean, is the same as in all important aspects.

It is intended to be different than one equal sign which I use to stand for equivalencies that are metaphorical not literal.

This is maybe a good point for you to stop or pause and realize that I am showing you things that are important to me in my introspective work wherein I explore me and what I'm all about. It's easy to notice that since my first focus and career in life was Engineering that math is a big part of things for me. The point I want to make is you have to find your own inner symbols and leverage them to your benefit (and I DO NOT mean in the Jungian sense of the 'transidental function of the symbol' sense as "explained" by Jung.

Don't waste your time studying any other philosophy other than Objectivism because THEY do have all the CORRECT answers. Many philosophies and psychologies have plenty of "answers" but if you want the correct ones study Objectivism and Biocentric Psychology. (PS: THEY/they without dots and/or commas are the regular they.)

NTS: This needs elaboration and I plan on providing it if I live long enough. (That is I am now 77 going on 87 and my time is running out ... running out of what? Stop it. Enough for now.)

Culture is lcd—lowest common denominator.

Many people are ok with being part of their culture at this lcd level.

And I am not saying it's not ok.

I'm saying it's a choice to not aspire to higher.

If you live in and are a member of the United States of America lcd culture then you are in as good a "culture" as you can currently get on Planet Earth (albeit not without scary risks for the future, see DIM) and if counting your lucky stars was not such a cliché I'd say that's what you should do.

Then there are those of course who aspire to lower. These "people" we call criminals.

Deering, Gary Dean . ABC's of Psychology Engineering (p. 13). Raise Books, LLC. Kindle Edition.

[223] Thinking, Feeling, Acting, Judging. If we accept the BiO Spiritualism view that "culture" as a total, "whole" thing is like a "sum" of fractions and operates on the same principle: namely, before you can "add them all up" you have to reduce them to the LOWEST common denominator, then this statement is true for all who aspire to HIGHER in any (and all) culture(s).

Gary Deering. Yes. \(Is BiO Spiritualism the answer?\). Raise Books, LLC. Kindle Edition.

hcd – highest common denominator, by analogy those who aspire to higher than just lcd (there isn't such a thing in mathematics as hcd like there is for lcd but the sentiment of the concept is what is meant with the idea that all who worship authentic individual rights we are calling hcd, that is when we integrate culture to it's highest common denominator we get those who worship individual rights of the authentic kind.)

And by all your wits I mean all your human attributes—not just your cognitive abilities, but ALL your HUMAN abilities: your precious-priceless-nature-endowed-gift of an inerrant perceptual faculty coupled with your non-omniscient conceptual faculty that if managed correctly allows you to ACTUALIZE an open-ended growth into the open-ended human potential; your art function, your abstracting ability, your human power of volition (e.g., right now I just used mine to re-focus my attention from thinking and writing to listening to the chirping bird sounds outside my springtime window by the desk I am working at); self-awareness abilities (spring has always been MY favorite time of year and still is); self-acceptance abilities, self-assertive abilities, and in general what I call,

TFAjots: Thinking, Feeling, Acting, judging, observing, testing and some more of same as we repeat our forever growing, learning, upward spiral in our one and only life and in living it in happiness and fulfillment in the here and now.
